

What is it about you...

That makes me want to strip off my clothes and share the scars revealing the battles and stories of my life?

What is it about you that creates electrical sparks around me and shivers up and down my body

What is it about you that makes me feel so wonderfully young, alive and sensual?

What is it about you that wants me to want you more than I have ever wanted anyone before?

What is it about you that elicits all this in me?

What is it about your electrical kiss that melts every cell in my body as I surrender to who I have become with you while the seekers keep looking for the magic I have here?

I cannot thank you enough for letting me be—
free of judgments,
free of game playing and name calling,
free from all those daily tears at our nerves.

You are all that is bright and all that illuminates like my warmth on a cold winter night as you arrive from the moonlit waves which engulf you, and the darkness which embraces you, while you place your gentle mind on tonight's pillow.

I am one with you, in each of our fantasies and realities, but still continue to wonder, what is it about you?